How to protect the Earth at Home

Take a realistic approach to protecting the earth and first consider what you can do in your own home. This is much more manageable than taking on the world. It is in simple everyday steps that you can make an impact.

1 Make your own non-toxic cleaning products. Doing this will reduce the use of you are reusing plastic containers. The ingredients are also biodegradable which means it is gentler on the environment.

2 Use cloth bags at the grocery store and when you are shopping, instead of using plastic bags. You reduce the use of plastic.

3 Explore the idea of purchasing energy-efficient appliances. Replace regular light bulbs with their energy efficient versions. They may cost a little more, but they last longer and use less energy.

Set up a compost container. All plant-derived foods, coffee grounds and tea leaves can be composted. You can have a small can in your kitchen and when it gets full, transfer the waste to an outdoor container. You can use the resulting rich fertile soil in the garden. It reduces the amount of garbage.

5 Grow an organic garden. If you have space or time to grow a garden, shop locally and support local farmers.

6 Reduce the use of car travel. Consider walking, carpooling and bike riding to get to where you want to go. If you have a car, keep it in good conditions, to reduce pollution.

7 Reuse clothing. Shop resale shops, garage sales and pass clothing items on to friends and family. Consider doing this with toys too and other house items. This helps to recycle and reduce trash.
